PEABODY, MASS., CREATES
PANIC AMONG CHILDREN.

SIX HUNDRED TRAPPED

Halls and Exits Choked With Struggling Mass of Little Ones Many of Whom Are Trampled to Death or Suffocated.

Peabody, Mass., Oct. 28.—Fire broke out in the St. John's parochial school shortly after the morning session began today, and many of the children had great difficulty in reaching the street. The dead, it is said, might reach fifty.

Teachers of the school declared many of the children on the upper floors had been unable to escape and had undoubtedly lost their lives. The chief of the fire department reported that at least twelve children were burned to death and as many more were injured.

600 Pupils at Desk.

The fire broke out in the boiler room and swept through the building. More than 600 pupils under sixteen years of age were at their desks when there was an explosion, apparently in the boiler room.

The flames swept through the building, which was a three-story structure, almost before the children could get out of their rooms.

ed to do. This caused confusion among those who followed and congestion in the vestibule.

Blocked Exit.

Meanwhile the flames reached the stairways and caught the struggling children. Within five minutes flames were shooting from all the windows and exits. The local firemen summoned aid from Salem, Danvers and Marblehead, but this came too late.

Police and firemen bent their energies chiefly to pulling children from windows. The Mother Superior dropped twenty-five charges from windows on the second floor and the children were caught with overcoats and blankets.

BROKER'S EMPLOYE
PUT UNDER ARREST

Bookkeeper in Employ of Murdered Chicago Broker and His Wife Are Held By Police.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Leonard Buck, a bookkeeper employed by the brokerage firm of which the late William C. Voorn was a partner, was arrested today by the police to be questioned today regarding the slaying of the broker, who was shot to death as he was entering his home at 1000 North Dearborn street, last night. A woman who Buck said was his wife was also detained. They were arrested in a rooming house last night. Both maintained they knew nothing about the murder.

The arrests were the first made in the puzzling case. Aside from the report that Voorn was a victim of a murder because of his activities in purchasing munitions for the allies, the single clue on which the police had to work was a missing diamond which had been snatched from the victim's pocket.

Detectives, who questioned Buck, said he admitted that he defrauded Voorn of about $1,200 by raising checks so as to make up the difference between his salary and his living expenses. The detective said that Buck made but ten dollars a week. He paid rent of eleven dollars a week for his apartment.

FIND GIRL'S BODY
CRUSHED ON TRACK

Daughter of Former Mayor of Pittsburgh Meets Death in a Mysterious Manner.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—The headless body of Miss Sofia McGillin, daughter of the late Wm. C. McGillin, former mayor of Pittsburgh, was found last night on the Pennsylvania railroad track at Roup, a passenger station within the city limits.

The body was so badly crushed that identification was impossible until today, when her absence from the office of E. S. Morrow, city comptroller, was reported.

Miss McGillin left his office yesterday afternoon, but the circumstances leading to her death are unknown, although almost fifty passenger trains stopped at the station during the afternoon and night.

The body was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad at Roup, a passenger station within the city limits.

Windy City Saloon Owners Hereafter Cannot Keep Open Saloon to Sell Cigars or Non-Intoxicants.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Strict enforcement of the Sunday saloon closing law in Chicago was reinforced today by an opinion formally filed by the corporation counsel, which council license committee holding the saloon license may not keep their places open on Sundays for the purpose of selling cigars and soft drinks. The opinion was issued by the license committee so that a definite policy might be followed by the city authorities, who had received many requests to permit saloonkeepers to screen off their bars and keep the blinds drawn.

STARTS LONG TRIP IN A FLYING BOAT

Inventor Leaves Albany on Hudson Bound for Cape Hatteras on North Carolina Coast.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Beryl H. Kendrick left this city at 3:30 a. m. today in a flying boat on an attempt to fly to Cape Hatteras, N. C. He was reported as having passed Castleton forty minutes after the start, and to be headed toward Point Lookout.

New York, Oct. 28.—Kendrick arrived here at 11:40 a. m. today, completing the first stage of his intended flight from Albany, N. Y., to Cape Hatteras, N. C. He was reported as having passed Castleton forty minutes after the start, and to be headed toward Point Lookout.

Kendrick had followed the Hudson river from Albany. When he reached here he soured over the statue of liberty and attracted much interest from persons on vessels and on the waterfront, as he passed down the bay headed toward Staten Island.

LADY'S RIBS FRACTURED
WHEN IN FREIGHT CAR
SCARES HORSE AT ROSCOE

Beloit, Oct. 28.—A Mrs. Kiserburg, living a mile north of Hunter, and her son in law, Thomas Talguth, escaped quickly this morning in an accident on the Kinsinnick bridge at Roscoe, near here. The two were driving a single rig and as they were approaching the bridge an approaching team of horses frightened their horse. The animal attempted to turn about and in doing so a wheel of the buggy was broken. Both Mrs. Kiserburg and Talguth were thrown from the rig. The former received two fractured ribs, a broken wrist and other minor bruises. Talguth was more fortunate and received only cuts and wounds of less importance. The horse ran away, jumped a five foot fence and was finally captured when he refused to jump the fence again.

LIST OF SUSPECTS?

Taint of Professionalism May Bar Wisconsin Football Men Before Crusade of Purity Ends.

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—Professor James Paige, acting in a private capacity, and a representative of the Big Nine conference has submitted information to Wisconsin authorities that Galvin, full-back on the Wisconsin eleven, played professional baseball at Glendive, Montana, last summer. Mr. Paige said his action was in no sense a protest of the played.

Asked as to Galvin, and also as to Simpson, a Wisconsin guard, said to have received money for coaching a Wisconsin high school, and Scamion, Chicago guard, said to have coached Hyde Park high school for money, Prof. Paige said:

"Officially I have offered no evidence, but in private capacity I have submitted such information as I have to colleges and in a private capacity I intend to do so until my information is more definite."

Prof. Paige said to have been advised of the Galvin case at a recent meeting of the eligibility committee.

Denies Report.

Madison, Oct. 28.—Neither Director of Athletics Ehler, University of Wisconsin, nor Professor F. R. Wisniewski, chairman of the Big Nine conference committee, had received any information either official or unofficial connecting Galvin, Wisconsin football fullback, with professionalism.

Director Ehler said that a report had been printed intimating that Galvin had played professional baseball, but that Galvin had denied the report.

CITY OF MADISON WILL HAVE NEW POSTOFFICE

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—The city of Madison is to have a new postoffice, but it will be located on a new site. It was originally planned to locate the new postoffice on the present site, but it was found that to comply with the requirements of the government it would require the razing of the present postoffice building. Under the plan, a new building will be erected on a new site.

RUSS SEEK PASSAGE
THROUGH ROUMANIA

Former Bulgarian General Made Commander in Chief of Slav Force Against Bulgars.

Milan, Italy, via Paris, Oct. 28.—The Corriere della Sera learns from a diplomatic source that General Radko Dimitrieff will command the Russian forces sent against Bulgaria. He is now at Bucharest trying to influence the Roumanian government to permit the passage of Russian troops through Roumania.

General Dimitrieff at the opening of the war was Bulgarian minister to Russia. He at once resigned and offered his services to the Russian war office. His offer was accepted and he had been commander in chief in the Bulgarian army in the last part of the first Balkan war.

VETERAN CONDUCTOR
BURIED AT MADISON

T. Gannon, Street Car Man, Has Been in Service Since Days of Horse-Drawn Cabs.

Madison, Oct. 28.—T. Gannon, a street car conductor here since the days of the mule cars, died today. His death was the result of an accident while on duty. A campaign has been launched and money raised for the erection of a memorial fountain to his memory. The fountain is located at the end of the street car line, running from the cemetery. The fountain is a monument to Gannon's long service to the city.

TASK FALLS TO BRIAND FOLLOWING RESIGNATION OF VIVIENNI MINISTRY.

DENIES CRISIS EXISTS

Change in French Cabinet Were Assured Since Resignation of M. Delcasse Two Weeks Ago.

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Viviani ministry resigned today. Aristide Briand has been asked to form a new cabinet. The following statement was issued to the press by M. Briand prior to the announcement that he had been asked to form a new cabinet:

"Premier Viviani took steps to enlarge his cabinet. I am continuing them in my turn but I have no official mandate, since there is no ministerial crisis. Accordingly the conversations I have had with various political leaders have not only been official, but I ask you to explain that it is in that sense that my activities must be regarded. Perhaps I may be in a position to say more very soon."

Paris, Oct. 28.—It is understood that Premier Viviani will retire from his present position in favor of Aristide Briand, former premier, and that the following statement was issued to the press by M. Briand prior to the announcement that he had been asked to form a new cabinet:

GOOD ROADS BOYS
ENJOY EXCURSION TO CAPITOL CITY

More Than Forty Boys Interested in Good Roads Have Fine Time on Yesterday's Excursion.

Forty-six Rock county boys, led by George S. Parker, chairman of the Rock County Good Roads committee, and entrants to the good roads contest conducted under the auspices of the Janesville Commercial club, returned last evening from their excursion to Madison as the guests of the club. The automobile trip and inspection of the state buildings proved a big treat and the boys were full of enthusiasm to enter the contests of next year.

Following dinner at the Park hotel, the delegation, sixty-three in all, called on Governor Emmanuel L. Philipp in the executive chambers at the state capitol, by appointment. They were introduced by Mr. Parker in a well chosen speech. Governor Philipp spoke to the party for over twenty minutes, encouraging them to continue in the work and warning them that "The boy who sits back and whines, 'There isn't any chance for me,' is no good and will never win."

A. J. Hawkey, chairman of the state highway commission, addressed the boys, praising the boys for the nature of their endeavors as fostered by the business men of Janesville, for better roads in Rock county. A. E. Matheson, who happened to meet the party at Madison, also gave a few remarks.

The governor's talk was a plain, straightforward one. He told of his own experiences as a boy when they did not have any country roads and the value they were to any community. He showed his pleasure at the call of the delegation and impressed his hearers with his remarks.

The "throne room" was visited, the paintings explained and the same was the supreme court room. The boys inspected the chambers of the assembly and senate chambers, which were inspected and other points of interest in the capitol building.

The party then enjoyed a trip over the university campus under the personal direction of Prof. James of the agricultural college. They inspected the dairy barns and the gymnasium and other points of interest. The party left for Janesville late in the afternoon. There were more than sixty boys representing nine towns.

The following boys were present: Johnstone, three boys, one supervisor; Lima, five boys and one supervisor; Magnolia, two boys; Clinton, eight boys and one supervisor; Harmony, nine boys and one supervisor; Plymouth, eleven boys and one supervisor; Porter, one boy; Turtle, one boy; La Prairie township, although no one boy and by Thornton, Reed.

The following boys won prizes: James Hadden, Johnstone; William Perry, Lima; Leslie Townsend, Magnolia; George Clinton, Clinton; Ray Cartney, Harmony; George Scott, Fulten; Clarence Hanson, Plymouth; Kenneth Sayre, Porter; Albert Grulke, Turtle.

Plymouth had the largest delegation in the contest and every boy entered took the trip to Madison on Wednesday.

Federal Authorities Declare Leader 'Fay Has Not Confessed to Being Agent of Germany.'

New York, Oct. 28.—Federal authorities in charge of the case of the five men accused of conspiracy to disable steamships carrying munitions of war from this country to the allies, asserted today that the government was without evidence that Robert Fay, the confessed leader of an alleged plot, was acting on any authority other than his own. "We are preparing the legal aspects of the case for grand jury consideration," said United States Attorney Marshall, "but we have absolutely nothing to lead up to believe that Fay, who says he was a German army lieutenant, was actuated by any official authority in Europe. Fay has made only one confession."

Seek Plot's Financier.

New York, Oct. 28.—Efforts of federal prosecutors and secret service agents here were directed today to an investigation of the financial backing of the leaders of the conspiracy to blow up all munition plants and ships of which Lieutenant Robert Fay of the German army is alleged to be the head.

Wm. J. Flynn, chief of the United States secret service, was quoted today as saying: "I believe we are going to get the financiers of this plot. Fay says he had spent only $4,000. Paul Steinhilber, who is a German, had $7,500 when he started for this country. We believe Fay spent $30,000 more."

HIGHS RUN UP BIG SCORE ON SCRUBS

First Team Rounding Into Shape—Two Teams Will Play at Beloit Saturday Afternoon on College Field.

Little trouble was experienced in last night's practice at the fair grounds by the first high school team in getting through the line of the second team for in about a half hour of playing they piled up a score of sixty to nothing. The line of the first team is developing to be very strong as the scrubs were unable to make any gains through it, and in fact, they were helpless all during the scrimmage.

Saturday afternoon both the first and second teams will go to Beloit and engage in struggles with the first and second teams of the Beloit high school. The scrubs will play the first game as a curtain raiser to the big game between the old-time rivals, Janesville and Beloit high schools.

Tomorrow night Coach Dutcher will send his men through a short signal drill and then everything will be all set for the game Saturday.

It is planned to hold a big mass meeting Friday night after school, and if enough students will go down to the game, a special car will be chartered on the interurban.

LEACH CROSS "CLEANS UP" ON WAR STOCK SPECULATING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, Oct. 28.—Admirers of Leach Cross, the pugilist dentist, who have been wondering at his long absence from the ring, today got an explanation from Leach himself. "Two years ago," confided Cross, "those birds in Wall street got my roll. Well, I never forgot it. Today I'm just about to break the bank down there. I've been playing these war babies off the boards and have cleaned up. I have 366 shares of one stock which I bought at 69. Today it is quoted at 285. That is the only game I ever struck that beat the fighting game."

SOLON IS SUSPENDED FROM MINN. UNIVERSITY

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 28.—Lorin Solon, deposed captain of the University of Minnesota football team, has been suspended from the university for an indefinite period. The announcement was made today from the office of President George E. Vincent in the form of a bulletin.

This, it is explained, is not an equivalent of dismissal, as it leaves the deposed football captain the privilege of petitioning for reinstatement at some future time, conditional on good conduct.

When the charges of professional baseball playing were made against Solon he was questioned as to the truth of the rumors. He persisted in his denial up to his disqualification. The announcement of suspension by President Vincent is the result.

Pitcher Slapnicka of the Milwaukee club has a grievance. Promised a bonus if he won half of his games this year, he says that when the Brewers started upon their last trip he had lost one more game than he had won. He fully expected to win that other game on the trip, but had no chance, the management leaving him at home. Now he threatens to bring suit.

Slam Love, the pitcher signed by the Yankees for next year, will be the tallest pitcher in the big leagues. He measures 6 feet and 7 inches and was a very successful hurler for the Los Angeles team last season.

There's no pompous attempt to analyze pitchers or to criticize this play and that. Just a straightforward assertion that he was working above his speed and luck was with him.

The most valued possession the hero had when he arrived was a check for his share of the world's series money—$3,825.35.

And Duffy gave the check to his wife.

While the wide world was centering on Grover Alexander, they forgot that he had some good pitchers, too," asserted Lewis. "Personally, I don't think Alexander was as good in any one of the big games as he showed on the coast last fall. So much publicity about how he had to beat the Boston club single-handed probably hurt his prospects. Our pitchers—Foster, Shore and Leonard, were in great shape and twirled fine ball.

Dutch Leonard had a great year with the club. He was so excited about beating Alexander that he tossed me all around the clubhouse after the game.

That last home run I hit I'll never forget. The Phillies just dropped their heads as if they had been struck a blow. It took all the snap out of them."

Here's how the great games were generated. "Carigan was spoken for by the club, together with Wagner did the coaching on the bases. Ray Collins was the man behind the guns and kept record of every ball that was pitched to every batter. So after each game, we would hold a conference the next morning then Collins would tell each one of us just what had been pitched and the board of strategy tried to figure out what was to be expected the next time up. We had as good a line on the pitchers as could be had, and I am sure it was a big asset."

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair tonight and Friday; cooler tonight; warmer in north and west portions Friday.

UNITED WE STAND.

A house divided within itself will surely fall. The motto, "United We Stand; Divided We Fall," is true in every day life and particularly in civic affairs. No firm or corporation can succeed where there is internal dissension. There must be unity of action in boosting a business and the same is true in boosting a community. Janesville is a pretty good sort of a place to live in. The residents here are happy and prosperous and there is no reason why the world should not know it. Why the city should not increase in population and its business interests grow materially. Nature has given the city particular advantages and man has increased them three fold. Next week the city is to hold a "Made in Janesville" exhibit at the Auditorium. It should be a representative exhibit and include every line of manufacturing activity in the city. It should be typical of Janesville and the products it sends out into the world. We have a harness factory, farm machinery and numerous other factories in the city that send their products to the four winds of the heavens. Make the display one which will not only arouse interest of the public outside the corporate limits, but will even surprise the citizens themselves who fail to realize what Janesville offers in the way of industries to the world at large. Be a booster and get behind the proposition to make Janesville one of the most successful communities in the country. Next week the citizens of Rock county and rich farm lands and prosperous residents and add just a bit of personal pride in the town you live in and boost—Janesville.

NOT EASY TASKS.

It is not an easy task to conduct a city's affairs even though you are elected for a term of years. There is a considerable amount of red tape to be complied with, which the public knows nothing about. There are trials and worries that do not appeal to the average layman. Take for instance the handling of the water works by the city. The transfer of the business from a private corporation into those of a city. The changing of the system of collection of bills, of keeping accounts and of employing labor. Commissioner Cummings, who has had this department in charge, deserves much credit for the manner in which he has handled his difficult task. There are many citizens who firmly believed that the moment the city became possessed of the water works plant there would be no charge for water to private consumers at all. How it was to be accomplished they did not know, but they believed it. It has been hard work to convince the average consumer that he is not paying too much for his supply of "Adam's ale." However, Commissioner Cummings has met them all with a smile, a cheery word and they have left for the most satisfied that they were not paying a cent more than they should. This is a hard world for city officials who try to do their duty, but unjust criticism should not be permitted when you see men like Fathers, Cummings and Goodman all seeking to work for the best interests of the city as a whole and not for their individual preferences.

SUFFRAGE IN JERSEY.

Just what significance the overwhelming defeat of woman's suffrage in New Jersey may result in, it is regarded as a decided blow to President Wilson's political prestige, all the more so because the vote against it was 2 to 1 in Mr. Wilson's own precinct. Without in the least criticizing the President, some of the more astute leaders of the suffrage movement have regarded it as a decided misfortune that the President's announcement that he would vote for suffrage should have been followed immediately by the announcement of his engagement to be married. It was, as these women pointed out, inevitable that many who might have been influenced by President Wilson's declaration on the suffrage question would suspect, as soon as his engagement was announced, that the suffrage pronouncement was designated to offset any criticism which might follow upon the announcement of his engagement less than fourteen months after the death of the first Mrs. Wilson, rather than as a sincere contribution to "the cause." Some of the suffrage leaders thought it decidedly unworthy to connect the two incidents, but many of them believe that, worthily or not, many people have so connected them and that the ultimate result was to injure the cause of suffrage, especially in New Jersey, where the first Mrs. Wilson was greatly beloved.

When Napoleon wanted a little bit of spare change to conduct a few campaigns he merely sold a few hundred thousands of acres of French possessions to some neutral power as he did the great Louisiana territory to Uncle Sam. Russia also did likewise with Alaska, and Spain with Florida. Now days they borrow money on mortgages. Just a bit of a difference, is there not?

Now comes a French scientist who announces that we are going to have a series of cold winters for many years to come. He can not tell us just where the cold will be most intense, but he knows it is going to be cold. What with a wet summer and a cold winter in prospect is life worth living after all?

Chicago has a unique innovation in the shape of a "travelling mayor." Taft and Roosevelt were some travellers in their days, but "Big Bill" Thompson has taken the laurels from their brows though they never had any claim to distinction in this line.

One wonders whether the President's annual message will have a postscript added on as an after thought. At present it is doubtful if Wilson even knows what he wants to think about saying and will not until his wedding is over.

Talking about this proposed fortification of vulnerable parts of the United States against a possible invasion by a foreign power, why not consider the maple sugar belt of Vermont as one of the first places to be considered.

Judging by the action of Culebra cut, North and South America do not care to be separated even by a canal dug by man. However, Colonel Goethals will have something to say about it before long and then perhaps the two western continents will change their minds.

April and October are thus far the banner months of the present year. It is possible November and December may lay some claim to distinction, but May, June, July, August and September have nothing to boast of.

This empty coal bin is going to catch a whole lot of householders in a state of unpreparedness if they do not look out. Father Winter is not going to make his first attack known in advance if he can help it.

Would it not be proper just at this time to ask if Texas has as yet recognized Carranza? You must remember that the Lone Star state is the nearest neighbor of Mexico and perhaps they have some personal feeling in the matter.

Would it not be a terrible state of affairs if Mr. Bryan should have to turn about and "swat" Colonel Roosevelt in self-defense? It would be a case of "safety first" for those in the vicinity when the dauntless colonel recovered from his surprise.

After the war is over Uncle Samuel may have a first-class blue ribbon mortgage upon a half dozen European countries, but without the aid of a few first-class constables it will have work collecting even the interest.

After the war those bargaining Balkan nations are going to have a lot of trouble deciding who owns this city and who owns that strip of land. Meanwhile they evidently fight along just for the fun of scrapping.

Sewer work and street construction is by far less annoying than it would be if our streets were the scenes of fighting and trenches being dug right in our back yards.

Sometimes the pouter pigeon looks almost as important as does the average politician who believes the fate of the nation rests on his shoulders.

Despite the many charms that October is developing it is certain that in the worst of the post, this month has put a "quietus" on the lawn parties and out of door picnics.

The Daily Novelette

Those Latin Names. A bunch of orchids costs ten plunks. A goodly wad.

Why, that would buy a year's supply. Of golden rod. Young Zeke Twivvits, old man Twivvits' boy, sat on his father's rail fence and decided to seek his fortune in the city. "By gum!" he thought—(remember, he was a country boy)—"By gum, I'll go and set myself up in the florists business, by gee, I will. I know the names of the flowers, lived with 'em all my life, by gee—daisies, buttercups, tishweed, black-eyed molles, American cuties, stoof-blossoms, tolops, anglered and all the rest of 'em, by gee, I'm off!"

And suiting the action to the word, he jumped from the fence and made his way to the city, where he opened a modest little flower store and sat down inside to wait for customers. On the third day one appeared. It was Professor Woolpuller, head valet at the botanical gardens, come in to purchase some wild flowers for the family table.

"Are you the florist?" he asked young Zeke. "I guess there ain't many names of many flowers I don't know," replied Zeke modestly. "Well, I'd like a little bouquet made up of festimentas wizzitorums, genus illara, some tickididrum bumbillious, a few epishdori flupmycoans, genus gumbilla, and sprinkling of wizznara dumbillious."

"Just a minute," gasped young Zeke. And he rushed back and out the rear entrance, pausing only long enough to write on the back door: "Back to the farm. Z. T."

In a small town nothing turns public sentiment against a man so quickly as the fact that he shaves every day.

Milton News

Milton, Oct. 28.—The Japanese bazar held yesterday by the ladies of the Congregational church received a large patronage and it was deserved. A large variety of Japanese articles, tea sets, cups and saucers, leather goods, card cases and luncheon sets, etc., were offered. Home cooking of all kinds was an attractive feature and found ready and appreciative buyers. Light refreshments were served and it was a novel and pleasing event.

The Milton Junction Highs got revenge yesterday for the drubbing given them last week, by defeating the local highs 1 to 0 in a five inning game. It was a better played game than its predecessor.

KEEP AWAY THOSE GRAY HAIRS WITH SAGE TEA

With Sulphur, it Restores Natural Dark Shade. Guaranteed.

Sage Tea, combined with Sulphur, has been the favorite remedy for generations for darkening gray hair. Instead of trying to make the mixture yourself, simply get a 50c. bottle of Sulpho-Sage. Druggists say it contains all of the virtues of the good old-fashioned preparation plus other valuable ingredients. No matter how long you have been gray, Sulpho-Sage will bring back the rich, dark shade evenly and perfectly, leaving it glossy, lustrous and youthful looking. Entirely unlike dyes, no one will know you are using Sulpho-Sage. It removes dandruff and keeps new gray hairs from showing.

Forty Years Ago

Janeville, Oct. 23, 1875. — Rock county farmers are too busy with their fall work to market much produce these fine days.

The large number of hog pens on wheels that daily visit our market indicates a lively trade in fat swine. The masons are tearing out the old store fronts of Mr. William M. Fairman's buildings on Main street, preparatory to making the proposed repairs.

Members of the fire department are receiving six months pay today from the city. It only takes $335.00 to satisfy the boys, divided into forty parts.

The workmen have reached the tip end of the tower on the Congregational church. They are now on the hundred and seventy feet from the ground, and are doing a delicate and precarious piece of work in the mid-air.

Hon. S. J. Todd, of Beloit, was in the city yesterday afternoon, looking at and art.

POPULAR MARGUERITE CLARK CHARMS AGAIN

Dainty Screen Favorite Makes Deep
Impression With "Helene of the North."

Marguerite Clark was more charming and fascinating than ever in the Paramount picture "Helene of the North" at the Apollo yesterday. Miss Clark is a pleasant little person who can not only be frivolous and airy fairy, but can strike the note of tragedy and suffering as well. She has a chance at both in this rather well conceived screen story. The story, interesting throughout, made a very pleasant impression on the vast crowds yesterday.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"The Juggernaut" is the thrill of a lifetime in the greatest of all railroad dramas.

Throughout this story of today clutches your heart and grips your nerves, while the scene of the train wreck fairly lifts you out of your seat.

You see the great, throbbing locomotive, like a titanic life, crashing down into the dark swirling pools of the river far below.

You see the passenger cars crumple up like pasteboard toys. You see the passengers themselves fighting for their lives.

Yet this is but one dramatic incident in a five-part story that fairly teems with exciting incidents. If you read the sketch of the story in yesterday's issue, you realize the possibilities in it.

No three better players could have been chosen for the principal roles: Anita Stewart as Miss Ruth, and Louise Hardin, Barrie Williams as John Ballard, and William Dunn as Philip Hardin. And the whole production was made in the finest Vitaphone manner. If you miss it, you will have only yourself to blame. Performances will start this evening.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"Sins of the Parents" Tonight. A powerful dramatic story on a big theme, full of gripping situations, is the "Sins of the Parents" which will be shown at the Princess theatre tonight.

Madame Sarah Adler, the noted French dramatic artist, will be starred with a big cast. The production is in five parts and has been elaborately produced.

The story is a very strong one and illustrates most vividly the promise that the sins of the parents will be visited upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation. The story, however, deals with the effect on the children of the first generation.

It is a story that will hold one's interest tense from start to finish.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"The Birth of a Nation" Will Not Be Barred Here.

It is announced that there are places, in fact whole sections of this mighty republic in which Mr. Griffith's crowning achievement, "The Birth of a Nation," will not be shown.

Let that be as it may, it is going to be shown here, and we are "neutral," also broad minded, and are willing to hail the torchbearers whether they come from Waco, Tex., or Kokomo, Ind.—just so they have the goods.

It would seem, from the glaring comment on all sides, that Mr. Griffith has the goods in his mighty spectacle.

Scene from "Birth of a Nation," at Myers Theatre, all next week.

"The Birth of a Nation," which comes here for one week at the Myers theatre, and we will certainly welcome him for "the goods" sake.

As to judging him, we can do that after we have seen his work. They all agree as to the grandeur and marvelousness of the play—it is only as to the side it takes in the war, or the probable means of inciting trouble that certain authorities have been so bitter in their denunciation of it.

"Artistic treachery" one great organ has called it, while others have branded its producer as an "ingenious peasant master." When such pointedly bitter words are spoken of a work, people are led to read between the lines and realize that, regardless of what it may bring forth or of what it stands for, it is the great sight of the hour and that this city may consider itself among the "forty immortals" in an amusement way to get to see it this season.

Accompanying the great creation is

MINISTER GIVES TESTIMONY.

The Rev. C. M. Knighton, Havana, Fla., writes: For three months I suffered intense pain in kidneys and back, which at times laid me up entirely. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after trying various remedies without result I decided to try the Foley treatment. I was relieved almost with the first dose and it is a fact that I used only 1½ bottles when all of the pains disappeared. I am 53 years of age and now feel like a young man again.—W. T. Sherer.

"Just Jim" on Friday. Properly to describe "Just Jim" would necessitate the invention of a word that would magnify a thousand times the meaning of the word "punch." There are a dozen good places to stop and end the story because there are a dozen places where the action seems to rise to the real height of a true climax. But the wonderful tale and the gripping, logical scenes go on, until when the end is reached you breathe a sigh of relaxation, so tense and thrilling has been every stage of plot development.

"Just Jim," a crook who decides to go straight and he takes the knocks with the boosts, demands nothing for himself, but like all of us folks in real life, he "gets what he gives." It is one of the greatest pictures ever filmed.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Married Life on $80 a Month

By Mrs. E. A. Leonard

"Money is the greatest power on earth," for it affects every phase of a man's life. To prove that you have but to deprive a man of it and watch him dwindle and change.

"You're morbid," remarked Julia Osgood without turning around.

"Am I? I should like to have you prove it to me. There is nothing that paralyzes a man like the inability to face the world squarely. I am a man in a financial pinch long enough and I pinch him hard enough and squeeze every bit of manliness out of him. Mordecai is his soul to all that is the best in him."

Come now, you are laying it on uncommon thick. What is it to become of all our old notions about love being the motive power of the world?" asked Julia, smiling over her shoulder.

"I may be wrong, but I think I am safe in saying that it would be an unusual love that could stand the pinch of real poverty. Most women have no respect for a man who cannot make money. She resents the humiliation of going around in a narrow skirt when wide skirts are the fashion. Her last year's hat is an accusation against her husband. Things go on her nerves, and show in her temper. There is no use talking peace in the home is largely a matter of being well fed and well groomed. It is a good thing that I will not take your word against yourself. I should be sorry to believe you meant all this. If it has come to be a fact that women love a man only so long as he can clothe her in style, no wonder marriage is getting to be a failure. Julia looked reproachfully at her companion.

"All the same, it is pretty nearly true that 'where poverty comes in at the door, love goes out of the window.' By poverty I mean a party, not a decent competency," reiterated John.

"While I agree that money is a very convenient thing, and a certain amount of it is necessary—

"That's my point, when you get below the dead line, below necessary expenses, then self-respect dies; the best of the man dies. I'd sell my soul for three hundred dollars," interrupted John passionately.

A slight sound made him look up. Tyler was standing with his hand on the door as if about to enter. The door opened and he came in, but John had been standing there listening to his heated remarks. He passed to Julia's desk, gave her some instructions about her work and left the room.

For a time both were silent. Julia was the first to speak.

"I wish you would not say such things as you have been saying this afternoon. In the first place you do not really believe them."

"Don't?" interrupted John bitterly.

"And even if you did," went on Julia, "you had better not air your views so generally. No telling how long that gumshoe Tyler had been standing there, and you say he does not like you. Just now you cannot afford to run any chances of a false impression."

"You're right there," sighed John wearily, leaning his head on his hand. "It would be a person to me. I report some of my elevated sentiments to the boss."

"Has that creditor you told me of garnished your wages?" asked Julia after a long silence.

"Yes, I received a letter saying the order had been sent, but Mr. Jaynes has said nothing about it to me. I suppose he is making the inquiries he proposed to find out whether I am worthy to be an exception to the rule that a garnishment means a loss of position. I am not very hopeful of the result." There was despair in the tone.

"Why?" asked the girl.

"I have not been here long enough to make friends, and I left so many creditors in alpine that the drift of public opinion would be dead against me. You know what a black eye one could give a person. The all feel the same, that a man who cannot pay his way has no excuse for living."

"Well, hope for the best till the worst comes," said Julia encouragingly.

find at least ninety distinct and separate conditions—ninety, count them—all passing, in popular parlance, as "stomach trouble," and not one of them the fault of the stomach.

Take the fatter who sells the alleged "cure" for gallstones. Doesn't he also include "stomach complaints" in the list of ailments his colored olive oil "cures"? He does. Well, he knows the popular delusions. He is not so reckless as the old-time shell-game fellow whose nostrum was good for all diseases of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. But still he is as bad as the law will allow to-day—somewhat worse, rather, at least in his churlish matter, even if he has to be careful how he lies on the table.

"Stomach trouble" signifies something less than the all-inclusive "cold," it means simply that the patient is conscious of stirring events in the "stomach trouble" is to find out which of the ninety odd "extra-sastry" ailments may be causing the difficulty.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Fumigation After Cancer.

Please state whether in your opinion fumigation should be done after the death of a bad case of cancer?

Answer.—In our opinion, fumigation is useless, except to kill vermin. Soap and water cleaning, plenty of ventilation and sunlight are all that are needed for the rooms. This applies to diphtheria, smallpox, cancer, tuberculosis or any contagion. Personal clothing, toilet articles, things possibly soiled by any secretion, should be burned, boiled or chemically disinfected.

Noisebleed.

What can be done to stop ordinary nosebleeds?

Answer.—Most instances of nosebleeds are hemorrhages from a minute ulcerated spot on the cartilage or partition between the nostrils just inside of the nose (produced by the dryness of the air). Hence light and prolonged pinching of the nostrils stops the bleeding. Sometimes the spot can be touched with a suitable caustic by the doctor to stop frequent alarming hemorrhages. Do not blow the nose. Apply ice or cold to back of neck.

WOMEN OF ILLINOIS MEET AT CONVENTION ON EQUAL SUFFRAGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 28.—"What women's votes have done and can do to better conditions in Illinois," was expected to be the principal subject for discussion by delegates to the state convention of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association here today. All sorts of politicians have been invited to attend and tell the women what they think about suffrage.

The holding of a "liberty fund" for the purpose of gaining full suffrage for the women of Illinois will be proposed. The plan is to start getting women now so when the campaign for constitutional amendment, either through a constitutional convention or by direct amendment passed by the Legislature, is at hand, the state suffrage association will be financially prepared to carry it through to a successful conclusion. Experience in other states where the campaign for the ballot has suffered through lack of funds has led the officials of the association to this forehanded move.

A DAILY READER.

SIDE TALKS —By— RUTH CAMERON

Needles and Pins.

A neighbor of mine was telling a story of something that had happened to himself and his wife. His wife was present. Three times she broke in upon him with "Oh, my dear, that wasn't what he said!" and similar corrective interruptions.

They haven't been married very long and he bore the interruptions patiently though I could see he was chafing under them. The third time, however, he said with a restlessness that evidently held in leash considerable impatience, "Are you telling this story, my dear, or am I?"

"We are, my dear," she laughed. "Then I'll yield my share to you," he said.

Can't I interrupt my own husband once in a while?" she questioned, pouting prettily.

And because they haven't been married very long, he answered, "I mustn't have to let you if you want to."

But I'm afraid there'll come a day when he won't suppose that.

No, not afraid, for I don't see why there should be.

I think this habit that so many wives and husbands both contract of interrupting and contradicting each other is very unfortunate, to put it mildly.

Can't I interrupt my own husband or wife, as the case may be, is their thought, or at least their subconscious feeling.

And why should you, sir or madame, any more than you would interrupt anyone else.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Freshen Furs—Furs when taken out in the fall are often found to have a matted, crushed appearance. They can be made to look like new by the following process: Get the fur with a hair brush, brushing up the wrong way of the fur. Leave it to dry in the air about half an hour, then give it a good heating on the wrong side (do not heat the fur) with a rattan. After beating it, comb it up the right way of the fur.

Easy Window Cleaning.—Buy a chamois and use it with water with a tablespoon of ammonia in it. Dip chamois in water, wring lightly, rub over window once, dip in again, wring dry and wipe window. When the window gets dry it will be clean and shine beautifully.

If apples will not cook in pies, sprinkle them with one teaspoonful of vinegar to a pie.

THE TABLE.

Cream Cheese.—Half pound cheese and one tablespoon butter; run through food chopper. Fine fat cream table use or sandwiches will keep much longer than the dry cheese.

Economical Use of Lamb Chops.—Rib lamb chops "Frenched" are costly. To broil the lower ends with their scant flesh is to char them into uselessness. A savory luncheon dish, however, may be made of these lower or rib ends. Have the butcher crack the bones close up to the main, meaty part of the chops. Stew these gently for an hour, adding salt and pepper at the last, and set away to cool. Next morning chop the fat which will pop the top, slip bones from meat; cut meat into inch lengths, removing superfluous fat; reheat slowly in their own liquor. Cooked vegetables may be added, such as onions, peas, carrots, or beet roots, or potatoes. Thicken with butter and flour before serving. This is good on toast or as the center of a bowl of macaroni.

Spanish Macaroni.—Cook enough macaroni in salted water so as to have one pint when cold. Cut two slices of bacon in small pieces and fry; add one or two minced onions to this, let brown, then add one small green pepper finely chopped, in this stir pint of tomatoes. When hot remove from fire. Butter baking dish, put in a layer of tomato mixture, then a thin layer of cold minced meat, then a layer of macaroni, season a little. Repeat this until dish is full. Pour over this some milk and place a little butter on top; place in oven until well baked or browned.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, In Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Could you please tell me how to forget myself and not be self-conscious. When people talk to me I blush. I try to forget not to; but it just seems as though I cannot help it. I think it is because I always think people are looking at me. I can never go on now, and so please tell me a way I can help it.

PUNNY GIRL.

My dear girl, people are not looking at you. They are so busy with their own things, they are not observing what others are doing and then follow them.

Gradually you will learn what is correct and feel more at ease. Interest yourself in conversations and people and you will get along all right. An attentive listener is a great addition to any affair, because usually people want to talk and put themselves in evidence.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two girls sixteen years old. A's mother will not allow her to have boy friends. Why is this? She has had a number of chances to have nice boy friends, but her mother does not approve of it.

(2) When a boy brings a girl candy, whose place is it to take the first place?

(3) B's name is always red. How can she remedy this?

(4) Recently one of B's best friends changed schools and there he became acquainted with a new set of girls. He seems to have entirely forsaken his friendship? How can he regain his friendship?

(1) A's mother probably wants her little girl's mind to dwell on something besides boys until she is old enough to regard them in a sensible light.

(2) After the girl opens the box she passes it to the boy for him to take a piece.

(3) Apply a lotion made from four grams each of precipitate of sulphur, pure glycerine, precipitated chalk, cherry laurel water and rectified alcohol. In using the lotion, its action upon the skin must be carefully noted. If it causes the slightest tendency to peeling, it may be necessary to omit it for a few days, but a slight application of cold cream, rubbing of ketchup at once, if desired, will usually offset such an effect.

(4) She can't unless he, for some reason of his own, wants to go back to her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a fellow whom I dearly love and he thinks a lot of me, too, but there are other girls who are trying to break up our friendship. Do you think they can get the boy to drop me and go with them? He says that he will wait until I am of age and ask me to be his wife. Please tell me what to do.

You are too young to do anything. Trust the boy and in a few years, if you still love him and he loves you, it will be all right to become engaged. The other girls will not gain anything by running after him.

SIDE TALKS —By— RUTH CAMERON

Was It in the Marriage Service?

What was there in the marriage service that conferred on you the right to say "I do" to your partner? Right, honor, cherish until death us do part—I do not find it in any of these words or phrases.

The closer any social relationship the more danger of friction, the more danger of friction the more need of the lubricating oil of tact and courtesy. Marriage is the closest social relationship that exists. Why then should we dispense with even that measure of tact and courtesy that we use with outsiders?

The Wife Who Listened to Her Husband's Stories.

I once met at a friend's home a woman whose husband told long and tedious stories. It was worth the suffering he indicated to see her courtesy and fine pretense of interest with which she listened to him, despite the fact that he was her husband and that they were fearfully tedious even at first hearing, and that she must have heard them a hundred times.

Entering a room without knocking, opening each other's letters, contradicting the interrupting, making a jest of the other's faults and foibles for outsiders to laugh at, teasing each other (primarily a masculine fault)—these are some of the discourtesies to which husbands and wives think they have a right by virtue of their relationship.

"We don't have a right to all our rights," says Phillips Brooks. If it is a right at all, it's certainly that kind of one.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Freshen Furs—Furs when taken out in the fall are often found to have a matted, crushed appearance. They can be made to look like new by the following process: Get the fur with a hair brush, brushing up the wrong way of the fur. Leave it to dry in the air about half an hour, then give it a good heating on the wrong side (do not heat the fur) with a rattan. After beating it, comb it up the right way of the fur.

Stomach Trouble.

At last accounts, if we remember right, there were some ninety odd abdominal, chest and general complaints masquerading as "stomach trouble." Some of these deceptive troubles arose in the nervous system; some in the lungs; some in the heart; some in the gall sac and the appendix; and some goodness-knows-where, and all alike sent but one urgent message of distress which, to the deluded victim seemed to come from the pit of the stomach, and hence was "stomach trouble."

The poor, helpless, outraged stomach! What a target it is for the prodigious assortment of diets, drugs and diagnostic mistakes it has to endure!

To be perfectly sober about it, the stomach stands third in the list of popular "complaints." First comes "the nerves," blamed for a thousand and one difficulties with which the nerves really have as much to do as the stomach. Next comes the appendix, beyond a doubt, the liver, the good old ever-ready liver. And then, the patient, hard-working stomach. The usual innocence of the stomach under such charges is what makes us arm opponent of circumstantial evidence. We would never hang a man on circumstantial evidence, because we know too much about the stirring events in the pit. Here we

SLAYS EIGHT BEARS IN SEVENTEEN YEARS

Tom O'Brien is Champion Bear Hunter and He Does Not Use Machine Gun at That.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
El Paso, Tex., Oct. 28.—Eighty-eight bears in seventeen years. That's the record of Tom O'Brien, champion bear hunter of the Black range mountains, and he only hunts on Sundays.

He killed thirty-seven of these bears in the last eighteen months, using just thirty-seven shots. He doesn't believe in wasting time or ammunition.

"I read not long ago about a man who shot a bear seventeen or eighteen times," O'Brien told a group of visitors recently. "It's plumb disgusting. I don't think I'd had enough of a bear left to shoot at," and he wasn't bragging, either.

"How many bears have you killed since you began hunting?" O'Brien was asked.

"Counting little 'uns and big 'uns, I've killed eighty-eight in that time—seventeen years," he answered. "But some of them was just cubs."

"The best I've ever done was the day before the Fourth of July, 1913. I killed three bears and captured one alive."

"What did you use—a machine gun?"

"No, I was using a Mauser then," he answered. "Machine guns (pump guns) are liable to jam, and a man hasn't any use for a gun that's jammed when a bear is coming at him. I've tried almost every kind of a gun there is. Every time a new one comes out I buy it. I have a case full of them but I like that eight millimeter Mauser better than any other. I don't usually have to shoot more than once with it."

"I never shoot until I get a good shot. I don't care if he's coming toward me. I wait until I get ready in a hurry. But usually they'll give you time to break their necks. Always hit them in the neck. A grizzly always rears up to attack, and when he does, pop it to him."

O'Brien hunts with a pack of air-dale dogs. He goes to a likely spot and the bears do the rest. He has never been injured while bear hunting, hasn't even had an accident to his horse, and until a month ago never lost a dog. It is very seldom that he carries a revolver, because, as he expresses it, "a man can run faster when he's weighted down light."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It's Hard for Experts to Keep Out of the Game.

BY F. LEIPZIGER

Her Waist Measure.

A teacher in one of the city schools—who, to say the least, is of rather generous proportions—was trying to explain to her scholars the correct measurements of the human frame. "For example," she said, "twice around my thumb, once around my wrist; twice around my wrist, once around my neck, once around my waist." Then she paused, and a shrill voice from the back of the room exclaimed, "Twice around yer waist, once around the city hall."

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unequaled.

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting, home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instant relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 24 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any drug store, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—a family supply of the most effective cough remedy at a cost of only 54 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough medicine for $2.50. Easily prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and will soothe a painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying hacking.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quinine and is famous the world over for its splendid effect in bronchitis, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

To avoid disappointment in making this, ask your druggist for "24 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Rt. Wayne, Ind.

The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

By VINGIE E. ROE

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Company.

He waited easily, as if it was perfectly natural for strangers to drop from a hilltop and announce themselves the ruling power of the country, or more strictly speaking one of the ruling powers, for there were two.

"Sandry," finished the other, "Walter Sandry—from New York."

"Come in, Mr. Sandry—you're just in time."

Daily turned back to the lighted room.

"Silez, give Mr. Sandry my place. Harrison, I'll have to take your fling shed for tonight. Tomorrow we'll fix things in better shape."

The saw-filer, an important personage and one to be conciliated, frowned in his plate, but the foreman had lost sight of him. He reached out a huge, hard hand and took the bride-ring from the newcomer.

Already this man was standing inside the rude building, with a high-headed air of force, of personality that made itself felt in the most stolid nature present. He glanced down the double line of faces and for a second, just a fractional, fleeting moment, seemed to hesitate. Then he laid his hat on the small table, walked round to Daily's empty seat, swung a leather puttee and a well-built shoe over the bench and sat down. He was in place, and a vague feeling of adjustment, of solidity, accompanied him, as if he was there, as he said, to stay. Every man in the room felt it; and one of those strange sensations of portent communicated itself to them, as when the everyday affairs of life come to a turn in the road.

Daily's was on the eve of a change. The girl was putting a thick, white plate, hot from boiling water, before him, deftly laying the simple cutlery, pushing back an intruding dish. There was an air of detachment about her. No portion of her garments touched him. She was always "so aloof in a quiet way. Now, as she tended the stranger silently, one of her long braids slipped over her shoulder and fell across his hand. He drew away from the contact sharply and a dozen pairs of eyes saw the action.

"Hell!" murmured a man at the other side in mild amazement.

But not even the importance of the arrival of the Dillingworth Lumber company could keep silent this bunch of men from the ends of the earth. They were free lances, following wherever fancy and the lumber camps led them through the mountains and the big woods, contented in this place or moving on, bound by no rules, as independent and unholdable as the very birds of the air.

In three minutes the laughter was

It was a Call That Demanded, sweeping gustily again, accompanied by the solid clink of cook-shack dishes, the clatter of knives for the most part used as very adequate shovels, and Walter Sandry was forgotten or passed over.

An hour later he stood alone in the middle of a tiny room at the south of the building, looking fixedly at the yellow flame of a glass hand-lamp on a stand. Under the lamp was a woolly mat of bright red yarn, a wonderful creation—under that a thin, white scarf, beautifully clean, the ironed creases standing out stiffly. Beside the lamp lay a pink-tipped conch shell and a Bible.

Sandry looked longest at the Bible beside the lamp and presently he took it up curiously, fingering it with a quizzical, weary smile.

Its edges were thin and frayed and he noticed that it was greatly worn. Walter Sandry smiled and glanced at random through the book.

"Motherhood," he said half aloud, "is there nowhere a father?—a dear old chap of the earth, a gentle old man with white hair? One who has raised a son?" As if in answer to the whimsical words, the fragile leaves separated at the tragic record of King David and the words of that ancient father-heart stared up at him. "Oh, Absalom, my son, my son!" vital in their anguish. With a snap he closed the book, holding it tightly clasped in his hands while he stared into the flame of the lamp with knit brows and twitching lips.

It was as if the fateful cry had touched some sore spot in his heart, set throbbing some half-healed pain. For a moment a shadow as of a vague remorse darkened his expressive face. Then a resolute strength tightened his lips and he laid the Bible gently down and blew out the light.

It was cold in the little room and the rain was dripping from the eaves.

CHAPTER III.

The Wondrous Hills at Dawn.

He was awakened next morning by the thunder of heavily shod men storming in from the bunkhouse. The smell of cooking was in the air and the crack under his door showed lamp-light.

The rain was still dripping softly from the eaves. As Sandry came into the eating room the old woman of the kitchen was looking over the crowd of men as impersonally as he himself had done the night before, with a polite assurance and a subtle force as strongly indicated.

Her bright, old eyes, blue as his own, met his lifted glance as he hesitated.

"Set down in the place you had last night, Mr. Sandry," she said in a rich voice, "it's yours now. John'll move down a notch."

She went back into the mysterious region of pies and doughnuts, and Sandry was conscious of a slight feeling of wonder. He was already taken in as one of the family in a subtle way, and it did not quite suit him to be so. If he missed certain lifelong attributes of service and surrounding, if he took his place among these rough men with an inward tremor of rebellion, he made no sign.

Again the girl he had met on the farther side of the mountain tended in silence, a trifle more aloof. She was clad in the same sort of blue flannel shirt the men wore, with a red tie under the turndown collar and a rather short blue skirt showing her feet clad trimly into miniature boots. The latter were even full of small steel caulk.

It was still dark when the loggers trooped out into the fine rain. John Daily came to him.

"Now, what would you like, Mr. Sandry?" he asked. "Will you come into the hills with us, or would you rather rest around camp? You come a long ways, I guess."

"Yes, From New York."

"I was thinkin' yesterday mobby you'd rather just loaf around—"

"Yesterday? Did you expect me?"

"Oh, yes. I got a letter from Mr. Frazer last week. He said the company had made a change and I might look for a visit."

"I think I'll go about," said Sandry. Outside it was fresh and slightly cold. A thick, white fog struck him in the face with an almost palpable touch. It lay close to the earth, a sluggish monster spread down in the valleys as if for warmth. Through its enshrouding whiteness a lantern gleamed faintly across the slough.

Already the little locomotive was getting up steam and the donkey showed a red throat for an instant as McDonald shoved in more wood.

From ahead came shouts and a laugh or two as the men struggled up to the railway.

There were five cabins set around on the edge of the small, sloping mountain meadow which gave back-ground for Daily's camp; and in all the windows lights were gleaming. In one cabin a door opened and a man came out, stopping a moment on the sill to reach up and kiss a woman, who stood silhouetted against the light, when the door closed and Sandry could not see the man, though he could hear his footsteps. The foreman swung ahead in the path.

"They's a footlog here," he said, "tidewater slough. 'Tain't deep." They stopped at the foot of the ridge where the donkey, the railway and the track terminal huddled against the bold uplift, and Daily introduced him to Hastings and Murphy, the latter of whom hung out of the window of his diminutive cab and peered at the stranger out of laughing eyes whose forbears had twinkled on Donegal's blue bay and Erin's red-cheeked daughters with impartial joy.

"Ah, Mister Dillingworth," he said heartily, "an' phat d'ye t'ink av the West Coast now?"

"Sandry, Murphy," caught up Daily easily, yet with a warning note.

"Shure! Sandry t'is! Excuse me, Mister Sandry, but ain't th' scenery foin'?"

"What I've seen, yes, Murphy," answered Sandry after a slight pause. As he turned after Daily the Irishman stuck his tongue in the corner of his lips and drummed a minute on the sill, the broad smile lessening on his reckless face.

"An' phat d'ye know about thot?" he asked retrospectively of the fog.

Out of the near gloom, which was lightening a bit with dawn, the log trail rose, an aggressive snakelike trough climbing uncompromisingly at an angle of 36 degrees, its center a straight pine log sunk to its surface, which was polished like ivory, its slightly curving sides the same. How many tapering trunks had gone into its two miles would be hard to say, for in some places they had sunk and been covered—in the dip, say, over the ridge where the real mountain began, at the turn where it wound around the Shoulder.

Before ten minutes Sandry was breathing heavily, though he said nothing and kept close to Daily's heels. The logger strode forward and upward with an easy, climbing lift that rippled every muscle in his loose body, while the man from the cities strained and heaved in painful labor, slipping on the wet earth, floundering in the rotten bark and brush that lined the way. They climbed beside the trail, not in it. Ahead of them the gang of men had long since disappeared from sight and hearing.

The forenoon that followed was the opening page in a new chapter of his life, and Sandry bent all his faculties to a grasp of outlines.

He stood silently watching the work go forward. They had reached the cutting. Here, in a wide dip high above the world, it seemed to the Easterner, was a huge circle of activity. Close beside the built trail a second donkey engine fussed and screamed, reaching out, uncannily on all sides for the great logs, to haul them in with screech of spool and strain of cable and turn them over to the mysterious steel rope that came constantly crawling back on its traveling line. This was called the "yarding engine"—the one at the foot of the trail beside the railway and the track being known as the "roader."

The monotonous song of the cross-cut saws had begun where the buckers were converting several hundred-and-fifty-foot trunks into handling sections.

A little below, two foot-wide planks some five or six feet long had been set into a giant yellow pine about eight feet from the ground, one on either side, and on these two men were standing, their flannel shirts open at the throat, their sleeves rolled up from arms of steel and leather, their heads bare. Sandry watched the bending of their backs, every muscle, outlined under the clinging shirts, the play of their knees, the whole easy rippling of their entire bodies with the regular give and take of the long saw. The boards, known as springboards, rose and dipped with the even motion.

These men were fallers, and presently they would lay the towering monarch of the great woods to the fraction of an inch in a given place, ready for the buckers, the hook-tender and the cable.

In the meantime the logs already down were swiftly stripped of their limbs, cut into thirty and forty foot lengths, "rolled" into the trail with peavies and cant hook, and sent up and over the ridge to the accompaniment of shrill toots from the whistle-bob's restless cord, the straining of rigging and the squeak of fiber on polished fiber.

The built trail ended here in the shallow hollow between the first ridge and the great mountain beyond, though up the face of the latter it was prolonged by a cleared path sharply defined among the dense growth of the timber.

He was impressed by the magnitude of the country. On every hand the lifting hills were clothed in trees, close packed and of such girth and height as to seem almost grotesquely impossible. Humanity was dwarfed to insignificance, like an ant crawling on a cathedral column.

Sandry looked around. Up to this distance the woods were dotted with cuttings where the great stumps glowed white amid the vivid green and the debris of slashings and trimmings which combined with the fern and hazel brush and other undergrowth to make a perfect tangle. But beyond, along the new-cut trail, was nature, dense and untouched, waiting for the hand of pygmy man to come and take her lawless treasures.

FREE TO ASTHMA SUFFERERS

A New Home Cure That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time.

We have a New Method that cures Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as occasional or chronic Asthma, you should send for a free trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with asthma, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, tapers, potent smokes, etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our own expense, that this new method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms at once and for all time.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now, and then begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do It Today.

RICE & HUTCHINS' EDUCATOR SHOE

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Stop Stealing Your Own Energy

KICK off those narrow, pointed shoes—that compress and bend bones and thereby build corns, bunions, ingrown nails, falling arch, callouses, etc.—destroyers of energy!

Put on Educators—made to let the bones grow right—hence can never cause corns, etc. Good-looking, well-made, long-wearing.

For men, women, children, infants. $1.35 up to $5.50. But be sure EDUCATOR is branded on the sole—or else you haven't genuine orthopedically correct Educators. There's only one Educator. It's the one made by

Money-Making Ways of Using Want Ads

No. 10—Series of Want Ads for Business People

Experienced advertisers will tell you there is no such thing as the best Want Ad on earth. A Want Ad has a certain definite purpose ahead of it. When it does the business, it ceases to be of value.

There are more uses to Want Ads, however, than merely using one and then forgetting that the Want Ad columns exist.

If Want Ads bring business once, they can bring business again. But do not use the same Want Ad. Plan a series, so that you may change your Want Ad every few days.

Here are some ideas as to how a series, or "campaign," of Want Ads may be used:

THE FIRST WANT AD
BUSINESS LUNCHES DELIVERED
We deliver lunches direct to you, six different kinds of meat, 12 different kinds of vegetables and 5 different kinds of desserts to choose from. Charge only 15c and 20c. Drop a postal card and ask our man to call.

THE SECOND WANT AD
WHY GO OUT FOR LUNCH? WHY pay twice what you should pay? We deliver lunches direct to you, with a great variety of meat, vegetables and dessert to select from; a large variety, fast, wholesome, daily and satisfying. This gives you more time to shop or rest during the noon hour. Telephone or write us.

THE THIRD WANT AD
ONE WEEK'S LUNCHES FREE, 75c you will get ten persons where you work. To order our 15c and 20c lunches delivered on the premises, we will give you a 10c lunch every day for a week, free of cost. Get your order in right away.

THE FOURTH WANT AD
SAVE 20 MINUTES AND 10c EVERY noon by having us deliver our 15c or 20c lunches to you. Better food, a large variety, fast, wholesome, daily and satisfying. This gives you more time to shop or rest during the noon hour. Telephone or write us.

Think of Your Want Ad Plans Five Minutes a Day

No matter what kind of business you are in, spend five minutes daily thinking about "follow-up" Want Ads, and you will find that results are large.

Used in this way,

The Want Ad Feeds Business and Makes It Grow!

Investigation Proves that various disease germs have their breeding-place in the waste products of the body. Don't, then, let your bowels clog and throw these harmful germs back on the blood. Take no chances with serious illness. Keep your bowels free, and the bile regulated with which promptly and surely relieve constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sick headache. They are compounded from drugs of vegetable origin—harmless and not habit-forming. The experience of three generations show that Beecham's Pills prevent disease and are

BEECHAM'S PILLS

HAS FINGERS CRUSHED WHILE FILLING SILO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Evansville, Oct. 28.—Will Booda suffered a violent accident while filling a silo at the James Kilo farm west of this city.

He had just finished feeding the ensilage cutter when, in stepping behind the machine his left hand became caught in one of the gears and was so badly injured that it was necessary to amputate three fingers, leaving the little finger and thumb.

The first regular meeting of the "Help a Bit" club was held today at the home of Mrs. Frank Bullard. This Community Center club met and organized at the Tupper school house Wednesday afternoon, October 12th, the object of the club being a discussion of economic problems, the offering of suggestions that have proven helpful, and a benefit to other club members, and to bring the ladies together in a social way. At the initial meeting the following officers were elected: President, Miss Grace Hall; secretary, Miss Frances Searles; advisory committee, Mrs. Frank Bullard, Mrs. George Morrison, Mrs. Harry S. Spooner, Miss Augusta Brunell and Miss Grace Hall. The afternoon meeting, which was voted a flowing success, consisted of organization, the first "Help a Bit" and social chat, dainty refreshments being served by the hostesses. Meetings will be held every two weeks at the homes of the various members.

CATHOLIC THEOLOGICAL FACULTY FOR WARSAW

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Warsaw, Oct. 28.—A theological faculty, Roman Catholic, is to be added to the University of Warsaw by the German authorities according to a recent announcement. Dr. Kakowski, the Archbishop of Warsaw, is already taking the preliminary steps for establishing the proposed new school. The University formerly consisted of legal, medical, philosophical and natural science and mathematics departments.

ABOUT 300,000 BABIES DIE BEFORE ONE YEAR

The Census Bureau estimates that 300,000 babies died in this country last year before the age of one year, and it is stated that one-half of these deaths were needless if all mothers were strong and infants were breast-fed.

Expectant mothers should strive to increase their strength with the strength-building fats in Scott's Emulsion which improves the blood, suppresses nervousness, aids the quality of milk, and feeds the very life cells.

Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion; it is doubly important during nursing. No alcohol. Every druggist has it. Insist on Scott's—the white-fish-liver medicine. No advanced prices.

HOW BULGARIANS TRANSPORT THEIR AMMUNITION AND SUPPLIES

Bulgarian transport and its convoy of infantrymen near the Serbian border.

Owing to the lack of railroads, Bulgaria employs the rather ancient method of transporting ammunition and supplies shown in the picture. Transports like this have been very busy during the past few weeks moving munitions and other supplies to the Bulgarian frontier, where troops of Czar Ferdinand are in readiness to strike.

FILM STAR STARTLES COUNTRY SIDE WITH HER FREAKISH CAR

Miss Grace Darling at the wheel of "Silver Bird."

Miss Grace Darling, the popular film star, has one of the most freakish autos on earth, with which she startles the country side on her long tours. It is built of alternate two-inch strips of mahogany and white holly, while the deck is finished in bird's eye maple. She has christened her machine "Silver Bird."

NO EXTRA BURDEN ON EMPLOYERS AS RESULT OF RULING

Industrial Commission Chairman Explains Important Decision Made By Supreme Court.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—There should be no extra burden on employers as a result of the supreme court's holding that death from typhoid fever comes under the workmen's compensation act. This view was expressed today by Chairman J. D. Beck of the industrial commission, which administers the compensation law. In his statement Mr. Beck said: "The case of Verner vs. the New Delta Lumber company, I have read the decision of the court with considerable care and have read the dissenting opinion only casually. Insofar as the decision itself is concerned, it is in exact line as I see it with the decisions already made by the industrial commission. Take the case of Isaac Cupples vs. Holt Lumber company. This was a case of typhoid fever, brought before the industrial commission for adjustment under the compensation act. Compensation was denied principally on the ground that the evidence did not show that the germ causing the sickness came from drinking water, or from any other specific source. It might naturally follow that if the facts had shown that the applicant had received typhoid germs from drinking water furnished by the company, the commission would have awarded compensation. Another case recently decided was the case of a workman who was using painted or coated burlap as wrapping material. A disease developed which the facts showed was due to the material found in the burlap.

"You ask whether this includes lead poisoning or any other occupational disease. I fail to find that the court has attempted to discuss that question. It seems not to have raised that question, waiting for the future to bring it before the court.

"I do not believe this decision will add one cent's additional expense to the employers of the state. As I said before, it is simply in line with decisions already rendered by this commission. I do think, however, that one benefit is to be derived from the decision. The supreme court has passed upon the question in a way that will be of great assistance to the commission in working out with employers better sanitary conditions in factories. The dissenting opinion speaks of 'additional burdens' placed upon our employers as a result of the compensation act. It was not the intention of the legislature to place any additional burdens upon our industries in the enactment of the compensation law. They simply intended to provide a means whereby employers might pay the money they were expending for protection against liability for accidents, directly to the injured workman or his family, and as for the individual employer this act did not increase his burden in the least but rather tended to lighten it. Insofar as the whole body of employers in this state are concerned, the act did increase their burden because prior to the passage of the act but a comparatively small percentage of employers carried insurance, while under the act practically all carry insurance. But this even cannot be said to be an additional burden as it merely evens up the burden as between employers.

BACTERIA TREATED SOIL INCREASES THE GROWTH OF PLANTS SOWN IN PEAT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Oct. 28.—Jack's celebrated beanstalk is likely to be rivaled by Prof. W. B. Bottomley, who has astonished agriculturists here with plants grown in peat treated with bacteria. He believes that the same process can be applied to wheat growing as well.

Prof. Bottomley of King's College in the Strand, has been conducting his experiments on the roof of his college building in the very heart of London. The method by which he doubles and trebles the size of plants and their fruit was the result of a long line of experiments. He started by inoculating the soil with a culture of bacteria obtained from the root of leguminous plants. Soil so treated it was found, greatly increased the nitrogenous matter in the earth and produced more nodules on the roots. Peat was found to be the best medium for the bacteria.

From sixteen plants fed on the bacterialized peat, Prof. Bottomley cut seventy-two cucumbers weighing a pound each after a twenty days' growth. Sixteen pounds of tomatoes were taken from one vine.

"There are thousands of acres of peat in Ireland which could by bacterial treatment be converted into a rich manure and at least double the productivity of the soil," said the professor. "Incidentally, it would give Ireland a new industry for its practical inexhaustible supplies of peat would provide all that is required for the rest of the United Kingdom." The government has made a grant for continuing the experiments.

SUFFRAGISTS OF WEST ON CROSS COUNTRY TOUR

Washington, Oct. 28.—The "cross-country tour" of Mrs. Sara Field and Miss Frances Alda, envoys from the Woman Voters' convention at San Francisco, and Miss Mabel Vernon is expected to swing into Minneapolis tomorrow. "AVOID WALL STREET," SAYS FAIR SINGER WHO WON FORTUNE THERE IN FIVE DAYS

Mme. Frances Alda.

If you have any money and you aim to beat the game as it is played in Wall street, take the advice of Mme. Frances Alda, the famous opera singer, and keep out of it. Mme. Alda recently won a fortune in Wall street speculation in five days, but she says she won't try it again.

JANESVILLE MERCHANTS COMBINED REBATE SALE OCT. 30th to NOV. 6th

GARLAND RANGES HAVE STOOD THE TEST FOR A HALF CENTURY

The "Garland" Has Made Good on Its Merits

There are no cold mornings with an Art Garland Base Burner in the home. They are saving in fuel and generous in heat. They are a credit to any home, regardless of how elaborately it is furnished.

You pay as much or little as you like for a "Garland"—depending upon your requirements. There is a "Garland" for every heating or cooking need, great or small. You don't have to buy more stove than you really need and you never have to take less—you can get a "Garland" that will be exactly right, and at the price you want to pay. Four million housewives are using Garlands with complete satisfaction.

The famous Garland Assurance Policy, issued to you personally, absolutely guarantees that the "Garland" you buy will be perfect—quality, workmanship and performance will be all that they should be.

The big, full-sized Garland Ovens are so designed that there is a constant stream of fresh hot air passing through them.

The Garland Duplex Grate is a mechanical masterpiece of simplicity. With it your fire always stays in and gives you the last atom of heat in the fuel you use, be it coal or wood.

NO EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR CUPID AT THE WHITE HOUSE; WILSON'S DOCTOR TO WED

Miss Alice Gertrude Gordon.

Cupid is not on a strike for the eight-hour day at the White House. Following the marriage of the president's daughters, and the announcement of the president's engagement, as well as the engagement of Miss Isabelle Hagner, White House social secretary, it is now rumored on the best of authority that Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the president's personal physician, is engaged to marry Miss Gertrude Gordon, a Washington belle.

WHERE SOME WISCONSIN CHEESE GOES

Wisconsin Ships American Cheese Directly to Every State.

If all of the cheese made in Wisconsin was so labeled the residents of about every town and village in this country would soon realize that this is the greatest cheese producing spot in the world.

Our cheesemakers are annually making about one-half of the nation's cheese. And liberal supplies of their products are being shipped directly into every state of the Union.

Of the output of our factories, according to B. H. Hiltz and Ascher Hobson of the College of Agriculture, fully two-thirds is American and the remainder of foreign types, such as swiss, brick and Limburger.

They report that fully 170 per cent of Wisconsin's foreign type cheese is consumed in the middle West and principally in industrial and populous centers, where many foreigners are found. Our American cheese, on the other hand, is in demand in all sections of the country, and more and more is being considered as a food rather than a mere delicacy.

GOOD DESSERTS FOR BUSY PEOPLE

This is the busy season for everybody on the farm, and not only the men but also the housewives are hard pressed to get things done on time. For besides the usual spring cleaning, many farm women are taking almost entire charge of the poultry plant and hence do not have much extra time to spend on "fussy" menus.

Puddings are always acceptable desserts and if made correctly are always sure to please the tired and hungry field workers at noon-day. Chocolate and tapioca, which may be purchased cheaply at the grocery, make splendid foundations on which to build these "hasty" puddings.

These recipes were suggested by Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, one of Wisconsin's Farmer's Institute workers.

Chocolate Bread Pudding.—Two eggs, one pint milk, one-half cupful sugar, one cupful bread, one square of chocolate. Bake 30 minutes. If the bread is very dry, one cupful is ample; if it is very moist, it will take more of it. It is always possible to vary this pudding by adding raisins and spices. Bake about half an hour in a slow oven. If the bread rises to the top while baking, it should be stirred frequently. It may be served with butter.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding.—One egg, one-half cupful sugar, one square chocolate, one-half cupful milk, one cupful flour, two tablespoonfuls melted butter, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Steam in cups 20 minutes.

Tapioca Pineapple Pudding.—Soak the tapioca while opening the canned pineapple. Use four tablespoonfuls of tapioca and add one-half cupful of water, stirring in a dish on the stove until it becomes warm. Cut pineapple into small pieces. A tablespoonful of sugar is ample, as the pineapple itself is very sweet. Butter baking pan well on bottom, as tapioca sticks to an ungreased dish. Pour cupfuls of water added before baking will be sufficient. Put in a layer of tapioca and then a layer of pineapple and sugar. Repeat, having a layer of pineapple on top. The dish need not be covered while baking, as the pineapple seldom shrivels like other fruit. Bake half an hour and serve cold with cream.

Cultivate Your Talent.
One little talent on which you concentrate your energies, generally means far more in a practical way than the half-dozen gifts which divide your attention among them. For practical purposes it is easy to be too highly endowed. One talent with all the energy of your nature back of it will put you in a place where you will not need to envy anyone.

Lightning Made Fountain.
Lightning struck a telegraph pole in the upper part of New York city a few weeks ago and turned it into a fountain. Investigation showed that the lightning had ruptured a water main beneath the pavement and that the path provided by the tubular pole was the only means of escape for the leaking water. Since, to shut off the main would have deprived a large district of its water supply, the impromptu fountain was allowed to run during the night, and the main was repaired next day.

Told Her About It.
Eugene attended the wedding of his Aunt Nan, which took place in church. The bridegroom and best man were waiting at the altar for the bride, who was slowly advancing up the aisle, to the strains of the wedding march, when Eugene's childish treble sounded clearly: "Hurry up, Aunt Nan, Mr. Abbot's waiting for you."

Types

Thrift

By Sara Moore.

They had insisted on having a trained nurse. This had been followed by other expensive indignities. Hot-water bags were not exactly an extravagance; they could be used almost any winter, and for aches, boarders, ice-bags, however, were, without doubt, extreme luxuries. So was a glass feeding tube, began to fret. It had caused her first relapse. When they had thrust a nurse upon her, she was too ill to oppose them, but by the time the fever had abated so that she was clear headed, she recognized that the feeding tube was superfluous. She did not mind having nourishing things like white of egg, and orange or mutton broth poured down her child. The nurse had been hired to attend to her and the invalid could see no reason why she was not made to patiently administer the liquid refreshment via a common teaspoon.

Still too feeble to move, the sufferer had been forced to wait until the tube had been removed, and between her lips before she could scold about it. Her voice was weak, but her feeling was not. Soothing words only added to her irritation; the incident put her back into a state of semi-consciousness. After that, to subdue her desire to dominate, the nurse had only to remind Mrs. Ruthe that every fury only piled up the doctor's bill by causing three-times-a-day visits.

Now, bolstered with pillows and promised a possible half hour in a wheel-chair, Mrs. Ruthe stared at her soup cup and tried to decide whether it would be more expensive to let things run without criticism, or make a protest and pay the physical penalty.

"Don't you like that?"

"It tastes good," admitted Mrs. Ruthe grudgingly. "But it will ruin me. If that cook has been serving such rich soup she will ruin me."

"Oh, the boarders are not having any of that broth," smiled the nurse reassuringly. "I made that for you, myself."

"Why—yes—today is beet consommé day! You—you must have bought that chicken on purpose! My God, are you and the doctor and the housekeeper sitting up nights trying to think up ways of putting me into the poorhouse?"

Her wall did not disturb the other woman, who knew that before she could get to the poorhouse, Mrs. Ruthe would have to work through several fat bank-books.

All her years had been spent in suppressing waste, and the sick landlady could not adjust herself to a normal idea of expenditures. Because she had the vice of miserliness Mrs. Ruthe acquired many negative virtues, such as faithfulness to her husband's memory, industry, respectability. All the passion and imagination of a domineering disposition had been expended in watching the pantry so that the cook got maximum results from a minimum of material; in testing the grocer's scales so that she got every grain of flour paid for, in nagging boarders about gas, in making excuses for scant supply of hot water.

She was able to calculate to a quarter of a cent the possible "overhead" of a hall bedroom furnished with a cot, a second-hand chiffonier and chair, and a rag rug. She could substitute waste for substance in a host of excuses instead of coal for heat, and make a pound of butter "go" farther than any landlady of her age and experience in the state.

Mostly getting as much as possible for as little as she could make it, was not for gain, but for adventure. She got more thrills out of planning and executing than out of the dollars that resulted.

Still, the long sickness had drained her courage. She sank back, and slid down into a relaxed position, with a hopeless, helpless dread of returning to life, and its thankless struggle against expenses.

To turn her thoughts from morbidity, Mrs. Ruthe picked up a newspaper on the corner. The first thing her eyes found was an advertisement for a $57 funeral.

The invalid read thoroughly and noted details of the casket, which was offered at a cut price, because the undertaker was in need to benefit his fellow men by burying them cheaply. He would have nothing to do with the undertakers' trust that so clearly fixed the high cost of dying. He guaranteed to observe highest grade funeral etiquette, to provide a casket and hearse that was superior to his rivals at twice the price and throw in a mourners' coupe and camp chairs to boot.

With a sigh, Mrs. Ruthe sank deeper into the pillows. After all, she reflected, we have to all die sometime. When the doctor came that afternoon he found his patient so passive, he was puzzled. She did not grumble when he suggested that, even after she was able to be in the wheel-chair, she would better keep the expensive nurse for a minimum of material; in testing the grocer's scales so that she got every grain of flour paid for, in nagging boarders about gas, in making excuses for scant supply of hot water.

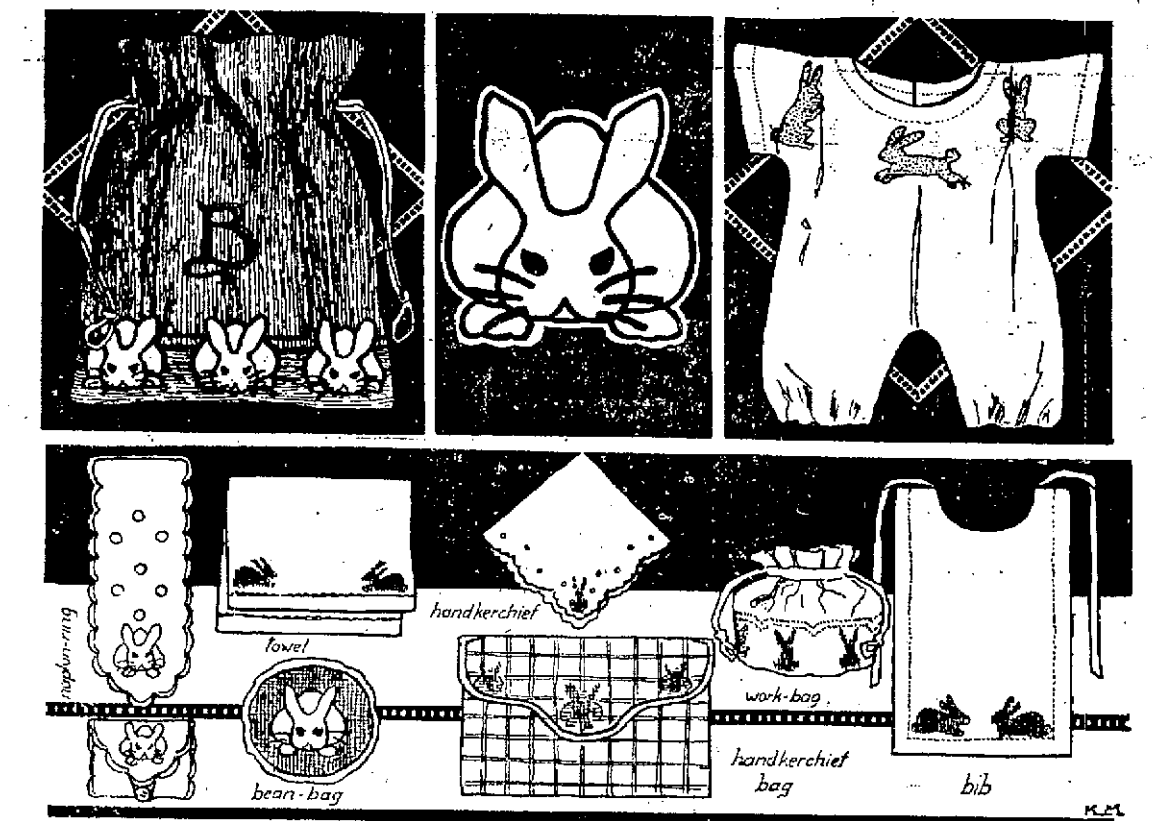

Something made him pay an extra visit in the morning. Mrs. Ruthe made no protest against the extra fee involved. She was listless, unresponsive. He insisted on having her put into the wheel-chair for a change.

As the physician, trying to be helpful, lifted a pillow from the bed to put it under her shoulder, he saw a newspaper carefully folded, so that the cut-rate undertaker's card was marked. He glanced from it, to his changed patient, and went away worried, uneasy. No one but a man who had suffered much from Mrs. Ruthe's partiality for economical methods could have so instantly understood the danger of the situation.

He came back in the afternoon, with his sense of humor sternly ambushed behind his moustache. After some skirmishing, he managed to lead conversation to the business troubles brought on by the war.

"It is funny that I could expect a small, middle west undertaker," he observed. "But I understand that Hanson, the funeral director, has just closed up as a bankrupt. It seems that his business was run on a small credit margin, and this war—"

Mrs. Ruthe never did try to verify the doctor's lurid news report. Very soon after she got strong enough to discharge him, she was too busy with spring, boarding-house cleaning to read anything but grocery advertisements.

BUNNIES EVERYWHERE.

All the little lady's belongings should be marked with her favorite nursery design. The bunnies are particularly attractive to children—as are ducks, chicks, brownies, etc. In the upper picture is the bunny motive. The little scholar will love the embroidered school bag. And couldn't she have a wonderful time in the little play-time jumpers? There are the bean bag, purse, napkin ring, towel, bib, work bag and many other things.

Needed Them.

Little Johnny was ill. Indeed, little Johnny had been desperately ill. But little Johnny neither had been nor was too ill to be vastly concerned over any chance to get something for nothing.

When the doctor came into the bedroom, the other morning, he placed his finger on Johnny's pulse and then smiled.

"Fine! Splendid!" he said to Johnny's mother. "His pulse dropped a quarter yesterday and a half today. Excellent!"

And after he made his departure, little Johnny lay in bed staring vacantly into space. It was quite evident that something was on his mind.

"Mamma," he said finally, "when the doc comes tomorrow will you ask him where that quarter and that half dropped to—I've got only six cents in my bank and I'd like to find 'em?"

The Seven Seas.

"The seven seas" is a phrase which greets the eye on many a page. "Sailing the seven seas," "Mistress of the seven seas," etc., are phrases so often encountered that several scholarly men have sought to trace the origin of the reference. The quest seems not to have resulted satisfactorily, and the matter remains in dispute. One of the interesting features brought out by the controversy is that, as employed many centuries ago, "the seven seas" did not include either the Atlantic or Pacific ocean, but referred to the Arabian sea, the Persian sea, the Red sea, the Caspian sea, the Black sea, the Mediterranean sea and the Adriatic sea.

MAY CALL OUT MILITIA

Gov. Ferguson Intends to Put State
Troops in Field Unless Additional
U. S. Regulars Are Sent.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 28.—Seventy per cent of the population of the Texas territory "invaded" by the Mexican "army of liberation" is composed of Mexicans. The district affected in which the recent raids and razzias have occurred, equals in area the state of New York.

The southern part of Texas is more Mexico than United States, and for that reason any uprising among the Mexicans is considered a menace. The United States regular troops already on the ground to oppose an insurrection or attacks on Americans number but a handful compared to the Mexican population and the soldiers of fortune who crossed over the line to start trouble.

It is estimated that 3,000 Mexican soldiers have come across the Rio Grande in the last two weeks. Judging any resistance offered to American troops, they were well supplied with arms and ammunition.

The affected section begins at Raymondville on the Brownsville railroad and extends south to Brownsville. All the district west of Brownsville as far as Laredo also is involved. Many fights have been reported in Starr and Hidalgo counties.

Two Hundred Killed in Year. Although the total of persons killed in the battles in the Brownsville country numbers but twenty-three, it is conservatively estimated that all along the border from Brownsville to Nacoz, Ariz., 200 have been killed during the last twelve months in raids on isolated ranches and battles with cowboys, ranchers, United States troops and by stray bullets fired by Mexican civilians.

It was on account of these fatalities that Gen. Scott was sent to confer with Villa and succeeded in declaring Naco neutral ground. The Americans at Naco were struck by bullets when opposing Mexican armies were firing at each other, the Arizona town immediately adjoining the Mexican town. Gen. Funston has about 16,000 soldiers under his command, most of whom are located in San Antonio, Texas City and El Paso. From Laredo to Brownsville and vicinity there are 3,000 regulars, and about 1,500 are stationed permanently at Brownsville.

At this time the Brownsville force has been decreased in order to maintain the Rio Grande.

Gov. Ferguson.

tain detachments in towns along the Brownsville road as far as Raymondville. Four companies were sent from Laredo but as soon as they had gone Mexicans near Laredo began raiding, and there is no chance of more troops being drawn from that quarter.

Ferguson Will Call Out Militia. It is positively known that Gov. Ferguson intends to call out the Texas national guard to maintain order at the border unless a large number of additional federal troops are sent there. This the government has practically refused, owing to the report by Gen. Funston that only a slight increase in the number was necessary.

Unlike former Gov. Colquitt, Ferguson is a man of great calmness and opposes using the national guard for every occasion but now he is fully aroused. Brownsville itself is expecting an attack, despite assurances from the commander at Matamoros and the presence of at least 1,000 American troops.

Every citizen in Brownsville, reports from there say, sleeps with guns loaded at his pillow, ready for instant service. Many women and children of Brownsville, Laredo and Corpus Christi have been sent to Houston, San Antonio and Fort Worth for safety.

Brownsville has a population of 13,000 and is 50 per cent Mexican. Laredo has 16,000 inhabitants, 80 per cent Mexican. All of the towns along the Rio Grande will average no less than 60 per cent Mexican and will run as high as 90 per cent.

Mexicans Think Territory Theirs. Each condition tends to lead the ignorant Mexicans of such localities to believe the territory rightfully belongs to Mexico and they point to the difference in population to prove it. Moreover the majority of Mexicans came to the Texas towns to live because they knew they would be safe there.

The present uprising began with the murder of Al Smith and his son Charles at Sebastian, by the Mexican Law and Order league and the killing aroused the country to a ferment. But hardly had news of the two deaths been received when three Mexicans were slain by a posse headed by Adjt. Gen. Hutchings.

Since then raids and battles have been daily occurrences, with the claim made by Mexican prisoners that they are fighting under the plan of San Diego, which aims to subjugate lower Texas and restore it to Mexico. Wild as the scheme may appear, these desperate, ignorant and hardy Mexicans are just such men as would attempt it.

If hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Mexican soldiers crossed the line to begin this "revolution" they would not be so easily handled as is imagined, for they have had four years' training in warfare under most trying conditions. They are hardened to life in the open, to suffering and hunger, and doubtless are led by Mexicans who know every inch of the territory.

Will Not Fight in Open. Moreover, they will not fight in the open if they can avoid it. They attack when least expected and only when they find a smaller band. They prefer to lie in ambush and to attack defenseless ranches. Following an attack, they hastily retreat, and the game becomes more one of hide and seek than of actual fighting.

The most important engagements fought so far in this "war" were those taking place at Sebastian, Lyford, Mercedes, Langtry, Nerrias ranch and a number of miles north of San Benito. Two battles were fought at Sebastian, the last Aug. 12, resulting in the death of three more Mexican raiders.

May Call Texas Militia.

Austin, Texas, Oct. 28.—Gov. Ferguson intends to call out the Texas national guard to maintain order at the border unless a large number of additional troops are sent there. This the government, owing to the report by Gen. Funston that only a slight increase in the number was necessary.

Once before the Texas national guard was called out to suppress Mexicans at the border. In April, 1914, Colquitt ordered two regiments to encamp at Brownsville following several Mexican raids. The anxiety displayed by the state troops, not only to suppress raids but also to invade Mexico, worried the administration at Washington and put a prompt quietus on Mexicans in that vicinity. The Texans were too anxious to fight to suit the Mexicans.

Since that time the federal government has given Texas to understand that she made a grievous mistake in putting national guard soldiers near the regulars sent out there for the same purpose. Although Ferguson on several occasions has been urged to dispatch troops to the border, he has refused, relying on federal aid. Now, however, all companies are inspecting equipment and preparing for an order that may come any hour to go to the "front" again, this time to mean business.

There are 2,000 national guardsmen in Texas. They are acclimated, ably trained and know how to meet the Mexican at his own game.

LAKE PORT CITIES
BEHIND THE TIMES
ON LAKE COMMERCE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 28.—That port cities of the Great Lakes have failed to keep pace with the evolution of lake commerce, and that port facilities in most cases are insufficient, obstructive and unsatisfactory, was the assertion today of William George Bruce, secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association of Milwaukee, and president of the Milwaukee Harbor commission. Before the annual great lakes waterways conference, which met in Detroit today, Bruce presented an analysis of lake port needs and problems, prepared from data contained in replies to a series of questions which he submitted to various lake port organizations identified with the waterways conference.

Bruce's report dealt with conditions at Chicago, Milwaukee, Manitowish, Green Bay, Racine, Kenosha, Duluth, Superior, Marquette, Ashland, Bay City, Port Huron, Detroit, Toledo, Ashtabula, Sandusky, Cleveland, Dunkirk, Erie, Buffalo, Oswego, Rochester and Toronto.

"This report," Bruce said, "does not confine itself to any specific phase of inquiry, but broadly aims to ascertain the problems now uppermost in the minds of those most vitally concerned with harbor efficiency and the progress of lake commerce."

The problem which stands out most prominently and which covers a larger number of lake cities deals primarily with deeper and wider river channels and increased terminal facilities. The constantly increasing size of vessels has rendered the inner harbors of many cities either partially or entirely inaccessible as far as larger vessels are concerned.

"Shipping warehouses have in a number of port cities been crowded from the more accessible to remoter and less accessible locations where the channels lack in depth and breadth, and where the movements of vessels become more difficult and expensive."

WOULD START SENDING WORK FOR THE GERMAN SOLDIERS ON RETURN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Leipzig, Oct. 28.—In anticipation of the end of the war, thirteen of the most important branches of labor in Leipzig have petitioned the city fathers to install, as a separate and distinct branch of the municipal employment bureau, a department specially for returning soldiers.

Store employees estimate that between 300,000 and 400,000 of their number will come back when peace is declared. The number of clerks is expected to be correspondingly large, and the number of technical workers is also very great. The figures refer to ante Germany.

The Leipzigers believe that the work of finding places for Leipzig's share of the returning throng must be begun now if there is not to be confusion and suffering for many seeking work. The mercantile, technical and office employers of the city are pressing the matter especially, in the belief that their branches of labor are going to be particularly hard pressed in their position, however, they do not hazard a guess as to when the return will begin.

MEN FOUGHT FOR LIFE

Board of Inquiry Into Submarine Disaster Finds That Crew Was Killed By Suffocation.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Oct. 28.—A graphic story of the battles for life waged in the sea by the twenty-one men who perished in the navy's submarine F-4 last March at Honolulu is told in the final report on the loss of the vessel, submitted by a board of inquiry headed by Rear Admiral Busch and made public today. Examination of the wrecked hull after it had been brought to the surface and placed in drydock convinced the board that the disaster was caused by a leak resulting from a corroded battery lining, and the failure of the boat through poor diving qualities to respond promptly to the rudder change which should have returned her to the surface.

Regarding the theory once advanced that chlorine gas brought quick relief in death to the crew, the board from signs within the rusted and battered hull pieces put in its report a dramatic account of how the doomed men strove desperately to save themselves as their vessel sank to the bottom. Fifteen met death in the engine room where they sought refuge at the last; six died at their posts in the flooded forward compartment.

All members of the ship's company are absolved from blame in this tragedy. From the facts obtained, we find the accident resulting in disaster to the U. S. S. submarine F-4 on March 25, 1915, was not due to the carelessness, negligence or inefficiency on the part of the officers or men of the vessel and that, furthermore, the personnel remained at their respective stations until all effective means employed to avert the disaster, impending had failed and thereafter sought refuge.

After a review of all the facts established in the investigation, the board states its conception of the disaster as follows:

"The primary cause of the disaster was the corroded condition of the lead lining of the battery and, in consequence, of certain rivets in the port wall of the forward battery steel tank."

(a) The poor diving qualities of the vessel; and (b) the consequent failure of the vessel promptly to respond to measures taken to bring her to the surface.

"Unknown to the commanding officer, the vessel acquired some negative buoyancy forward of the center of gravity; through the leaky rivet in the port wall of the forward battery steel tank."

"Water accumulated in the forward battery lead-lined tank and, through corroded sump tanks, overflowed into the battery cells—in contact with sulphuric acid in the cells, generating chlorine gas."

"The vessel developed a strong tendency to dive."

"Upon these intimations of danger, there followed:

"Up-rudder, but, due to the poor diving qualities of the vessel, aggravated by the additional quantity of water taken in through the port wall of the forward battery tank, vessel did not respond, but, in fact, continued to descend, and downward momentum gained before propellers were stopped."

"Automatic blow was tripped, and blow valve on auxiliary tank opened."

"In the endeavor to check the downward momentum, maneuvering with propellers probably took place."

"The appreciable length of time requisite for air to build up in ballast tanks for the expulsion of sufficient quantities of water resulted in vessel reaching crushing depths."

"Seams of the vessel began to open, and, probably through open torpedo tubes and seams—entered the vessel. A condition of positive buoyancy was never attained."

"There followed actual disaster."

"Persons began diving with water. Personnel abandoned stations and many sought refuge in the engine room, closing the door."

"Under great pressure, engine room bulkhead failed suddenly, leaving vessel on bottom, completely flooded."

"From its examination of the valves of the automatic device which was set to expel water from the vessel's ballast tanks at a depth of 100 feet as required by departmental regulations, the board found that the accident which struck the F-4 on her downward plunge had occurred before the 100 foot mark was reached. The most effective procedure for sending the boat to the surface was promptly carried out, diving rudders were set to send her upward, valves opened to empty the forward ballast tanks, and the electric motors started to drive her upward, all without avail. It was then some members of the crew, who were in the engine room compartment and the door of the bulkhead was closed. Fifteen bodies were found there and from that fact and the position of valves and rudders the board concluded that:

"Some member or members of the personnel were alive and capable of action for at least a short time after the occurrence, which led to the disaster."

"The board locates the primary cause of the tragedy forward of the engine room bulkhead. In this connection it says:

"Sump tanks and lead lining of battery sump tanks found corroded and therefore the chemical action of sulphuric acid upon impurities in the lead."

"Battery steel tanks in general found in excellent condition and therefore:

"The corrosion of certain rivets and areas occurred prior to March 25, 1915, the date of the disaster."

"Valves and rudders found operated; switches found thrown; engine room door intentionally closed; and, therefore:

"The personnel were not asphyxiated before the vessel, under normal conditions, could have been brought to the surface."

"Corroded rivet in port wall of forward battery steel tank, in wake of frame No. 51, found to leak slightly under even a small head of water—not more than one foot—to which this portion of tank could be subjected in doc; and, therefore:

"On the dive of March 25, 1915, this corroded rivet leaked considerably."

"Due to inevitable short-circuit or heavy ground, caused by flooding of cells through sump tanks, in the presence of chlorine and free hydrogen (or, in the presence of free hydrogen alone) if in sufficient quantity; electric arc struck; and, therefore:

"A battery fire of limited extent occurred in the forward battery positive cell; but, nevertheless, this battery fire was not the primary cause of the disaster."

"Leak found in port wall of forward battery steel tank; probable leaks around certain other corroded rivets in both battery tanks; probable leak through open torpedo tubes; otherwise, no positive evidence found as to where leaking occurred; and, therefore:

"The vessel began to leak through open seams when, or before, the depth of 300 feet was reached, and at such a rate that the weight of water coming in was greater than the weight of water being expelled from the ballast tanks, and, furthermore:

"Sump tanks found corroded; suction pipe leading to bottom of forward battery lead lined tank found plugged with marine glue; and, therefore, the conditions were contributory to the disaster."

"The report continues:

"No evidence found that the F-4 had poor diving qualities prior to her docking in February, 1915, when experimental propellers were fitted—the only known alteration made; and, therefore:

"The experimental propellers so substituted probably so affected the influence of the after diving rudders as to make it difficult for the diving rudder man to control the vessel; and, therefore:

"Air valves found open on forward main middle main, auxiliary, and after main ballast tanks; and, therefore:

"In the endeavor to check the vessel's downward momentum, the interval of time requisite for the expulsion of sufficient quantities of water permitted the vessel to reach crushing depths."

"The importance of this test is indicated by the fact that in point of population, the states of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, which will vote on suffrage Nov. 2, include over 20,000,000 people—a fifth of the population of the entire United States—and these 20,000,000 are practically double the population of the states in which equal suffrage has as yet been fully achieved."

In New York state, in addition to the suffrage issue, a dominant feature of the election will be the question of adopting a new state constitutional convention, presided over by Elihu Root. The new constitution, at the request of the suffrage leaders, has not been made to include the suffrage amendment, hence the constitutional and the suffrage measure will be voted upon separately, neither question having anything to do directly with the fate of the other.

The features of the revised constitution are measures designed to give the cities of the state greater latitude in the management of municipal affairs, and incidentally to relieve the legislature of a vast amount of local matters; to make the governor a more responsible individual by making the numerous executive arms of the administration more directly responsible to him; to reform the judiciary so as to eliminate some of the red tape that is declared to handicap the prompt execution of the laws; and among other provisions the short ballot and the budget system. Two important articles, relating to taxation and reapportionment, will be submitted to the voters, separate from the general constitutional question. Two other separate amendments would provide for a $27,000,000 bond issue to complete the Barge canal, and to permit the legislature to alter the rate of interest on certain state debts already incurred. Although the Republicans were in a majority in the convention, they are not supporting the new constitution nor the Democrats standing solidly against it.

In personnel, the New York election calls for the choice of a full assembly of 159 members, eleven congressmen, as well as county assessors in some sections of the state. Congressional successors are to be elected, of the thirty-first and thirty-second, respectively, who died while candidates in the last congress. The Republican and Blawie, Bennett, Democrat, both of New York, in the twenty-third district; Bertrand H. Lamont, of Potsdam, Republican, William A. Allen, of Malone, Democrat, and Howard D. Hadley, of Plattsburgh, Progressive, in the thirty-first district; and Norman S. Gould, of Seneca Falls, Republican-Progressive, and Louis J. Licht of Geneva, Democrat, in the thirty-sixth.

Massachusetts. In addition to the suffrage amendment, will vote on the proposition of giving the legislature authority to impose a tax on incomes, and similar authority on the taking over of land in country districts for the purpose of establishing homesteads for those who may wish to escape from the more congested quarters of the cities.

A successor to Gov. David I. Walsh, Democrat, is to be elected, and the candidates, including Gov. Walsh, Samuel W. McCall, Republican; William Shaw, Prohibition; Walter S. Hutchins, Socialist; and Peter O'Rourke, Socialist-Labor.

A lieutenant-governor and various other state officials together with forty senators and 240 members of the state house of representatives are also to be elected.

Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania will have comparatively little of general interest to its election outside of the suffrage question. No state officers are to be elected with the exception of three candidates to fill vacancies on the superior court bench. In general the only thing other than the suffrage issue to attract the voters to the polls will be the county and municipal elections, although one congressman is to be elected to fill a vacancy in the twenty-fourth district.

In Philadelphia the Republican organization has conducted a vigorous campaign to regain control of the city from administration, which was wrested from it four years ago when the Democratic contestants for every place on the ballot, and the Progressive party and elected Rudolph Blankenburg, a life-long reformer in

Two other separate amendments would provide for a $27,000,000 bond issue to complete the Barge canal, and to permit the legislature to alter the rate of interest on certain state debts already incurred. Although the Republicans were in a majority in the convention, they are not supporting the new constitution nor the Democrats standing solidly against it.

In personnel, the New York election calls for the choice of a full assembly of 159 members, eleven congressmen, as well as county assessors in some sections of the state. Congressional successors are to be elected, of the thirty-first and thirty-second, respectively, who died while candidates in the last congress. The Republican and Blawie, Bennett, Democrat, both of New York, in the twenty-third district; Bertrand H. Lamont, of Potsdam, Republican, William A. Allen, of Malone, Democrat, and Howard D. Hadley, of Plattsburgh, Progressive, in the thirty-first district; and Norman S. Gould, of Seneca Falls, Republican-Progressive, and Louis J. Licht of Geneva, Democrat, in the thirty-sixth.

Massachusetts. In addition to the suffrage amendment, will vote on the proposition of giving the legislature authority to impose a tax on incomes, and similar authority on the taking over of land in country districts for the purpose of establishing homesteads for those who may wish to escape from the more congested quarters of the cities.

A successor to Gov. David I. Walsh, Democrat, is to be elected, and the candidates, including Gov. Walsh, Samuel W. McCall, Republican; William Shaw, Prohibition; Walter S. Hutchins, Socialist; and Peter O'Rourke, Socialist-Labor.

A lieutenant-governor and various other state officials together with forty senators and 240 members of the state house of representatives are also to be elected.

Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania will have comparatively little of general interest to its election outside of the suffrage question. No state officers are to be elected with the exception of three candidates to fill vacancies on the superior court bench. In general the only thing other than the suffrage issue to attract the voters to the polls will be the county and municipal elections, although one congressman is to be elected to fill a vacancy in the twenty-fourth district.

In Philadelphia the Republican organization has conducted a vigorous campaign to regain control of the city from administration, which was wrested from it four years ago when the Democratic contestants for every place on the ballot, and the Progressive party and elected Rudolph Blankenburg, a life-long reformer in

Two important articles, relating to taxation and reapportionment, will be submitted to the voters, separate from the general constitutional question. EIGHT STATES HOLD ELECTIONS TUESDAY

GOVERNORS ARE TO BE CHOSEN
IN MASSACHUSETTS, KENTUCKY, MARYLAND AND MISSISSIPPI.

SUFFRAGE IS AN ISSUE

Fight in New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Will Furnish the Greatest Test on Woman's Vote.

(By Associated Press.)

Eight states, New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Jersey, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Mississippi, will hold elections on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Four of these states, Massachusetts, Maryland, Kentucky and Mississippi, governors are to be elected; in six states, New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Jersey, Kentucky and Mississippi, the state legislatures in whole or in part are to be elected, and in five states, New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio, important constitutional issues are to be decided.

With a few local exceptions, in fact, these constitutional questions will be the dominant issues on election day, including as they do such fundamental matters as woman suffrage, municipal home rule, prohibition, state income taxes, referendum plans, and some lesser reforms.

The woman-suffrage question will come up for decision in New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, which states will furnish the population, the greatest test of the suffrage issue has ever had in the United States. New Jersey, the first state in the East to vote on equal suffrage, defeated the proposition at a special election given over exclusively to the suffrage question on Oct. 19. While it has been held by some political observers that the result of the test in New Jersey would be, reliably indicative of what might be expected in the three bigger neighboring states, the suffrage leaders have not been discouraged by the big majority with which the issue was defeated in New Jersey, and look forward to the bigger test with confidence.

The importance of this test is indicated by the fact that in point of population, the states of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, which will vote on suffrage Nov. 2, include over 20,000,000 people—a fifth of the population of the entire United States—and these 20,000,000 are practically double the population of the states in which equal suffrage has as yet been fully achieved.

In New York state, in addition to the suffrage issue, a dominant feature of the election will be the question of adopting a new state constitutional convention, presided over by Elihu Root. The new constitution, at the request of the suffrage leaders, has not been made to include the suffrage amendment, hence the constitutional and the suffrage measure will be voted upon separately, neither question having anything to do directly with the fate of the other.

The features of the revised constitution are measures designed to give the cities of the state greater latitude in the management of municipal affairs, and incidentally to relieve the legislature of a vast amount of local matters; to make the governor a more responsible individual by making the numerous executive arms of the administration more directly responsible to him; to reform the judiciary so as to eliminate some of the red tape that is declared to handicap the prompt execution of the laws; and among other provisions the short ballot and the budget system. Two important articles, relating to taxation and reapportionment, will be submitted to the voters, separate from the general constitutional question.
